

On Nature and all creatures' inhabitants of Mother Earth

Arriving at Narrow Ridge was a fest to eyes of us suburbans. Tired of pollution and the city, we engaged in this deep sense of solitude and peace. The view within Narrow Ridge allowed drifting into the beauty of the Mountain View, instilling an exquisite feeling of deep bonding with Mother Nature. In the morning, fresh air blended with the colors of the trees, singing of birds and the sight of innocence visible in the deer running amidst in the distant field. On this very morning, a runaway deer returned, and surprisingly his eyes glanced at us, his ears stood upright, and we realized the simple truth, that we creatures are bonded in similarity and brotherhood. Narrow Ridge, a place to learn about respect to nature, a place where humans became mellows to each other instantly, a place to keep in the heart, and a lesson to be passed along.

Suely McCluskey

Miami, June, 4th, 2009